The Old Globe's "Classics Up Close" series, on our second-stage, continues with this deeply moving drama by Pulitzer Prize©-winner, Arthur Miller (All My Sons, Death Of A Salesman). The Price tells the story of two brothers who reunite, after sixteen years, to sell off the remains of their family's possessions. Along with the old furniture are memories of choices the two brothers made when their father's fortunes crumbled. As they try to arrive at a price with an eccentric antiques dealer, they are forced to settle up in more ways than one as each man reexamines his life and uncovers family secrets.

The creative team includes Richard Seer, director; Robin Roberts, scenic design; Charlotte Devaux Shields, costume design; Chris Rynne, lighting design; Paul Peterson, sound design; Diana Moser, stage manager.
